Spoon up Now you can have your champagne and eat it, too. Wine Cellar Sorbets has just launched a series of new sorbets made from vintage wines, like Rieslings and cabernets. There are three reds and three whites and one blush altogether. Even champagne. Our official taster pronounced the cabernet sauvignon — a 2005 California — “just about perfect.” Not too sweet, not too heavy on the wine, and “very smooth.” At about $6.99 a pint, look for them in Whole Foods and Dean & DeLuca.
